Here's what's so wonderful about Pit Bulls?

Affectionate

Pit Bulls are very affectionate companions. So if you don't like doggie kisses then a Pit Bull may not be the dog for you.

Outgoing

Pit Bulls are not shy animals. They tend to remind you regularly about how they feel about you! This means a lot of tail wagging and doggie kisses.

People-Oriented

Pit Bulls are people-oriented, which means they love people. Although they may get a bad rap in the media, if you have ever met a Pit Bull who was raised in a loving, nice family, then you would know just how much!

Limited Grooming Needs

A Pit Bull has a short coat and are average shedders. They don't require excessive grooming. Their coats are easy to care for, only requiring a reasonable amount of attention to brushing and bathing.

Athletic

Pit Bulls are very athletic and energetic dogs. They love to run and play and they also love to learn. Some activities that Pit Bulls can excel at are agility, fly ball and weight pulling.

Loyal

Pit Bulls are very loyal to their families. Your Pit Bull will be your and your friends' best friend from the day you bring him or her into your family. While they can be natural protectors of their family and their property, they are very friendly and will work to please their families.

When you adopt a Pit Bull, you will find that you have just brought into your family one of the best friends you will ever have! They are loving, loyal, smart and fun! They will provide you with years and years of joy! All they ask for in return is a family who is responsible, kind and caring in return.
